Hope you all had a good festive season.

Just for those of you who could not manage to join us for our Christmas lunch I thought you might like to see what those of us who did tucked into.

The After Christmas Blues Run also produced an excellent meal after a very different run - but enough is enough

Stan Dibben Illustrated Talk

You will remember that we had to postpone this talk due to Stan’s illness.

Malcolm has been in touch with Stan’s son who is writing a book, with Stan, about Stan’s life.

He has suggested that we wait until the summer for the rearranged talk, by which time the book will be completed and then they will be able, jointly, to present a more complete programme.

Proposed visit to St Fagans.

This is a suggestion for a visit to the Welsh National Museum of History near Cardiff. It is a mainly an open air museum with a collection of over 40 furnished historic buildings including dwellings from all over Wales. It is a quite unique experience to be able to step back in time visiting these places and to understand the kind of lifestyle folk had.

St. Fagans also has probably the best 16th century Manor house and gardens in the UK, much recommended by the tourist authorities. In the autumn new indoor galleries will be opened for particular artefacts. Restaurant and facilities are of course provided and entrance is free. (car parking is £5).

Getting there should be by modern car or if sufficient interest is shown we will try for a coach. The distance is about 90 miles from Fairford using the M4 (2 hours). The proposed date would be in mid-September say Thursday 13th.

If you are at all interested, please mail me NOW without any commitment to let me gauge the Viability. Guests are of course welcome.
